1.2 Summary of the Action

Timor is embarking on a digital transition process, and although financial inclusion and access to formal financial products in Timor-Leste are still limited, the country aspires to achieve a digital government that is simple, transparent, and easily accessible to all, where public institutions are more efficient and transparent, able to provide services nationwide, and enabling and fostering civic participation in public policy.

This Action will build on the previous Budget Support programme, the “Public Financial Management and Oversight (PFMO)” program. It also aligns with the Global Gateway Strategy, particularly with the digitalisation objective. At the same time, by enhancing various aspects of its institutional socioeconomic landscape and focusing on key features such as E-commerce and E-trade platforms, E-Government services, digital literacy programs, internet connectivity,
